

GIRL LURED BY "WHITE LIGHTS"

Arrested in Philadelphia with Francis Cannon, of This City.

WERE TO WED, SHE SAYS

Young Virginian Attracts Attention in Court by Her Beauty—Both Are Held Under Bail.

Philadelphia, Sept. 5.—Lured from the Blue Ridge Mountains by the call of the white lights of the city and still loath to leave them, Louisa Rhoades, seventeen years old, of Rockingham County, Virginia, was arraigned before Magistrate Sherman today, together with Francis Cannon, of Washington, D. C.

With only two-tinted cheeks and athletic grace to show her outdoor life in the mountains and garbed in the height of fashion, the mountain maid peered innocently at the Magistrate through a woman suspended from her neck by a broad ribbon and then smiled at Young Cannon.

The girl was arrested in Arch Street, where Special Policemen O'Connell, McCullough, and Keohane, of the Fifteenth and Vice Streets Station, were attracted by her unusual beauty and youthfulness. When arrested she told the police that she had met Cannon three weeks ago in Washington, and that they had been living here in order that Cannon, whose parents are wealthy, might show them that he could earn his own living instead of being sent to college, as they planned.

Cannon Working as Writer.

The pair first lived at 1111 Arch Street, and Cannon obtained a position as a writer in a luncheonette. After leaving the girl's home, the stationer arrested Cannon while he was at work. He was held on a $1000 bond and the girl in $5000 bond, and the pair were taken to the police station.

When Cannon was taken to the police station, he was told that he had been lured away from his home in the mountains by the white lights.

Cannon's father is very wealthy, and the girl is a very beautiful. She is in the city and night business, and when Cannon and I met three weeks ago, she was in the city and night business, and when Cannon and I met three weeks ago, she was in the city and night business.

Francis Cannon is the son of Patrick Cannon, a well-known saloon man, living in Twenty-second Street. He was in the city and night business, and when Cannon and I met three weeks ago, she was in the city and night business.

ZAMACONA NOT SENT AS ENVOY

When the rising wind shifted in direction and carried it again in the direction of the business section, taking the Public Utilities plant and other business structures in Malvern Avenue, crossing Malvern Avenue, the fire swept south, burning the Ozark Sanitarium and the high school building, when the shifting wind current again carried the flames to Ouellet Avenue, sweeping a wide pathway, destroying the Gratiot County Courthouse, and for a time seriously threatening to turn back in its path and sweep down the main business section of Central and Chautau Avenue.

By heroic efforts of the Hot Springs and Little Rock fire departments the fire was kept from turning back in Central Avenue, but there was no checking its eastward sweep. The wind was carrying it and building after building was destroyed in the space of a few minutes.

No Casualties Reported.

No casualties have been reported so far. Within fifteen minutes from the time the fire started it was under control of the fire department.

The wind increased in fury as the flames spread, and frame and brick business blocks were razed in a few moments. The firefighters would no longer get nearer to another desperate stand than the fire would sweep past them and leave out in a dozen different places at the same time.

One of the first big structures to go was the electric light and power plant, and as night grew the city was in darkness, save for the flames, which lit up the whole city.

There was no chance of checking the flames, but at the corner of Central and Market streets the fire department made a last determined effort to save the business and recreation section, and succeeded in diverting the course of the fire in the direction of the Hot Springs.

Tree Planting in Norway.

Plan is to Replace Forests as They Were Centuries Ago.

The coast land of Western Norway is almost devoid of forests, except where protection is afforded from the sea winds. The bulk of the forests, consisting of pine, birch, and spruce, are found farther in the interior at the heads of the fjords and in the valleys.

The Bergen Tree Planting Society was founded in 1898 to rehabilitate the rapidly dwindling forests and maintain additional forest from time to time with the society's slender means. The society has undertaken a momentous task, one that will require many years and large expenditures of money and labor, as it proposes to cover the mountain sides and the fertile areas of Western Norway with forests, as they were centuries ago.

Since the society started, thirteen years ago, 30,000 young trees have been procured, of which more than 25,000 were planted on 10,000 acres within the borders of the two Bergen counties. The annual report shows that there are now 10 tree-planting societies in these counties, which last year planted 2,750,000 trees.

Music and Meals.

"I know," said the restaurateur, "that a great many people object to music while they are dining; but there are a great many others who like it. I think, at any rate, that the moral effect of music is good. For instance, it gives an atmosphere of friendliness—I might even say tenderness—to everything."

"Good!" said Billkins. "Tenderness is good. I wish I could ask your orchestra leader to try a few bars on this steak, will you?"

Only Judges Were Sober.

From the London Chronicle.

Justice Darling suggests that the saying, "As sober as a judge," originated from the fact that 100 years or so back judges were the only sober people in the country. North of the Tweed, where the saying is also current, judges were certainly not conspicuous for sobriety. Andrew Lang relates that a great Scotch judge was once compelled to abstain from alcohol for six weeks. He then discovered that for thirty-six years of a learned and respected and valuable career he had never been for one hour really sober. He had his "mornings" when he awoke; his "twelve hours" at noon, on the bench he and the other judges sat; and he had his "evenings" when he was at home and his family were with him. He had his "mornings" when he awoke; his "twelve hours" at noon, on the bench he and the other judges sat; and he had his "evenings" when he was at home and his family were with him.

CRACK LAIN UPON ROAD

Chairman McChord Calls for Directors' Minutes Since Bridgeport Smash-Up.

TRAINMEN ON STAND

Flagman of Telescoped Train Testifies He Never Qualified for Position.

New Haven, Sept. 5.—Officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad are to be called to personal account for the wreck of last Tuesday in which 21 lives were lost.

Inaugurating its investigation into the causes of the wreck, the Interstate Commerce Commission, through Chairman C. C. McChord, inserted its probe directly into the executive office of the company by demanding the production of all the minutes of the board of directors of the company since the Bridgeport wreck in 1911, for the purpose of ascertaining what, if anything, has been done to improve the provisions for safety on the road.

Flagman Not Qualified.

Chairman McChord announced tonight that the records will be produced by the committee at tomorrow's session.

The important developments of the inquiry into the Wallingford wreck by the Interstate Commerce Commission in its first hearing this forenoon were as follows:

Charles Henry Murray, flagman of the wrecked Bar Harbor express, admitted that he had never qualified as a flagman on the New Haven; that he had never passed a flagman's examination, and that he had never received special instructions in the duties of a flagman.

Conductor Bruce Adams, of the Bar Harbor express, testified that the White Mountain express drew up behind his train at Wilson and was flagged, and that because of this he knew that the White Mountain express must be following closely behind when the fatal stop was made at Miller's Crossing.

Several witnesses said that it was customary for engineers in foggy weather to "drift" past hand signals of danger, sometimes almost by a train length, and it was impossible to run at more than ten or fifteen miles an hour and not do this. Flagman Murray contradicted flatly the assertion of Conductor Adams that he (Murray) had flagged and brought to a stop at Wilson the first section of the White Mountain express.

Flagman Murray testified that he had not had time to go out of sight of his train at the Miller's Crossing stop before he was recalled by the whistle of his engineer.

Several witnesses testified that objects could not be seen more than 200 feet at the time.

their seats, were polled, and asked: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon your verdict?"

Verdict Handed to Clerk.

"We have," replied Foreman Michael, "this time, and he handed to the clerk the fatal slip of paper."

The clerk passed it to the judge, who regarded it with impassive face, and passed it back to be recorded.

"Gentlemen of the jury, is this your verdict?" asked the clerk.

"It is," replied the jurors in unison.

The verdict reads:

"We do find the defendant, F. Drew Caminetti, guilty on the first count of the indictment, and not guilty on the second, third, and fourth counts."

These are the counts of the indictment on which the jurors decided:

"First count—That Drew Caminetti willfully, knowingly, feloniously transported and caused to be transported to Reno, Lola Norris, for immoral purposes, and to become his concubine and mistress."

"Second count—That F. Drew Caminetti willfully, knowingly, feloniously, and unlawfully transported and caused to be transported to Reno, Marsha Warrington, for immoral purposes, and to become his concubine and mistress of Maury L. Diggs."

"Third count—That F. Drew Caminetti willfully, knowingly, feloniously, and unlawfully transported and caused to be transported to Reno, Marsha Warrington, for immoral purposes, and to become his concubine and mistress of Maury L. Diggs."

"Fourth count—That F. Drew Caminetti willfully, knowingly, feloniously, and unlawfully transported and caused to be transported to Reno, Marsha Warrington, for immoral purposes, and to become his concubine and mistress of Maury L. Diggs."

CAMINETTI'S FATHER DECLINES TO COMMENT

Announcement of Verdict in Case of His Son, F. Drew Caminetti.

The Commissioner was found at his office about 10 o'clock last night. He said he had received word from San Francisco as to the verdict of guilty in the case. When asked if he had any statement to make in connection with the decision of the jury, the Commissioner answered:

"I thank you for the opportunity, but at present I have no comment to make."

LEADING SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

The New Gonzaga College

This magnificent new college building contains three stories and a basement, with a total frontage of two hundred feet. Each floor consists of a main front pavilion and a rear wing. In the pavilion of the basement is the LARGE GYMNASIUM that is 108 feet long, 38 feet wide, and 20 feet high. There are no pillars. The wing contains toilets, lockers, showers, team-rooms, cloak-rooms, &c. The pavilion of the first floor contains the offices of the President, Prefect of Studies, Treasurer, reception parlors, and four classrooms, the wing being devoted to the students' chapel. In the pavilion of the second and third floors are ten more spacious classrooms, four of which are the lecture rooms and laboratories for Physics and Chemistry. The fifteen classrooms will accommodate 500 students. The upper stories of the rear wing will be occupied by the library. The entire building is heated by steam and wired throughout for electric lighting. In a word, the New Gonzaga is a sanitary, fireproof college building, substantial in structure, ornate in design, complete in equipment, second to none in any detail that helps to secure for the student all the advantages of a sound, serviceable education.
